George Michael's Milestones

George Michael's career has been full of hits, highlights, and amazing achievements. Here's a list of important milestones in his career. However, they're totally out of order. See if you can put the events into the right chronological order by putting a number 1 in the space next to the event you think came first. Put a 2 next to the second event, a 3 next to the third, and so on. Here's your chance to have a blast with George Michael's past.

____ A. George Michael and one of his schoolmates, Andrew Ridgeley, meet and decide to begin making music together. The pair play together in a variety of unsuccessful bands.

____ B. George Michael releases his long-awaited first album as a solo singer. The LP, entitled Faith, produces a string of number one hits including the title track "Faith," "Kissing a Fool," and several others.

____ C. Wham! begins to attract a growing international following and the group makes a historic concert tour of China. It marks the first time a Western pop music group has played in that country.

____ D. Faith wins a Grammy award for Album of the Year.

____ E. George Michael and Andrew Ridgeley, tired of being in faceless, unsuccessful bands, decide to form a group of their own, Wham! They release "Wham! Rap" and "Young Guns," which makes it to number three on the British charts.

____ F. George Michael is born Georgios Panayiotou in Finchley, North London, on June 25, 1963.

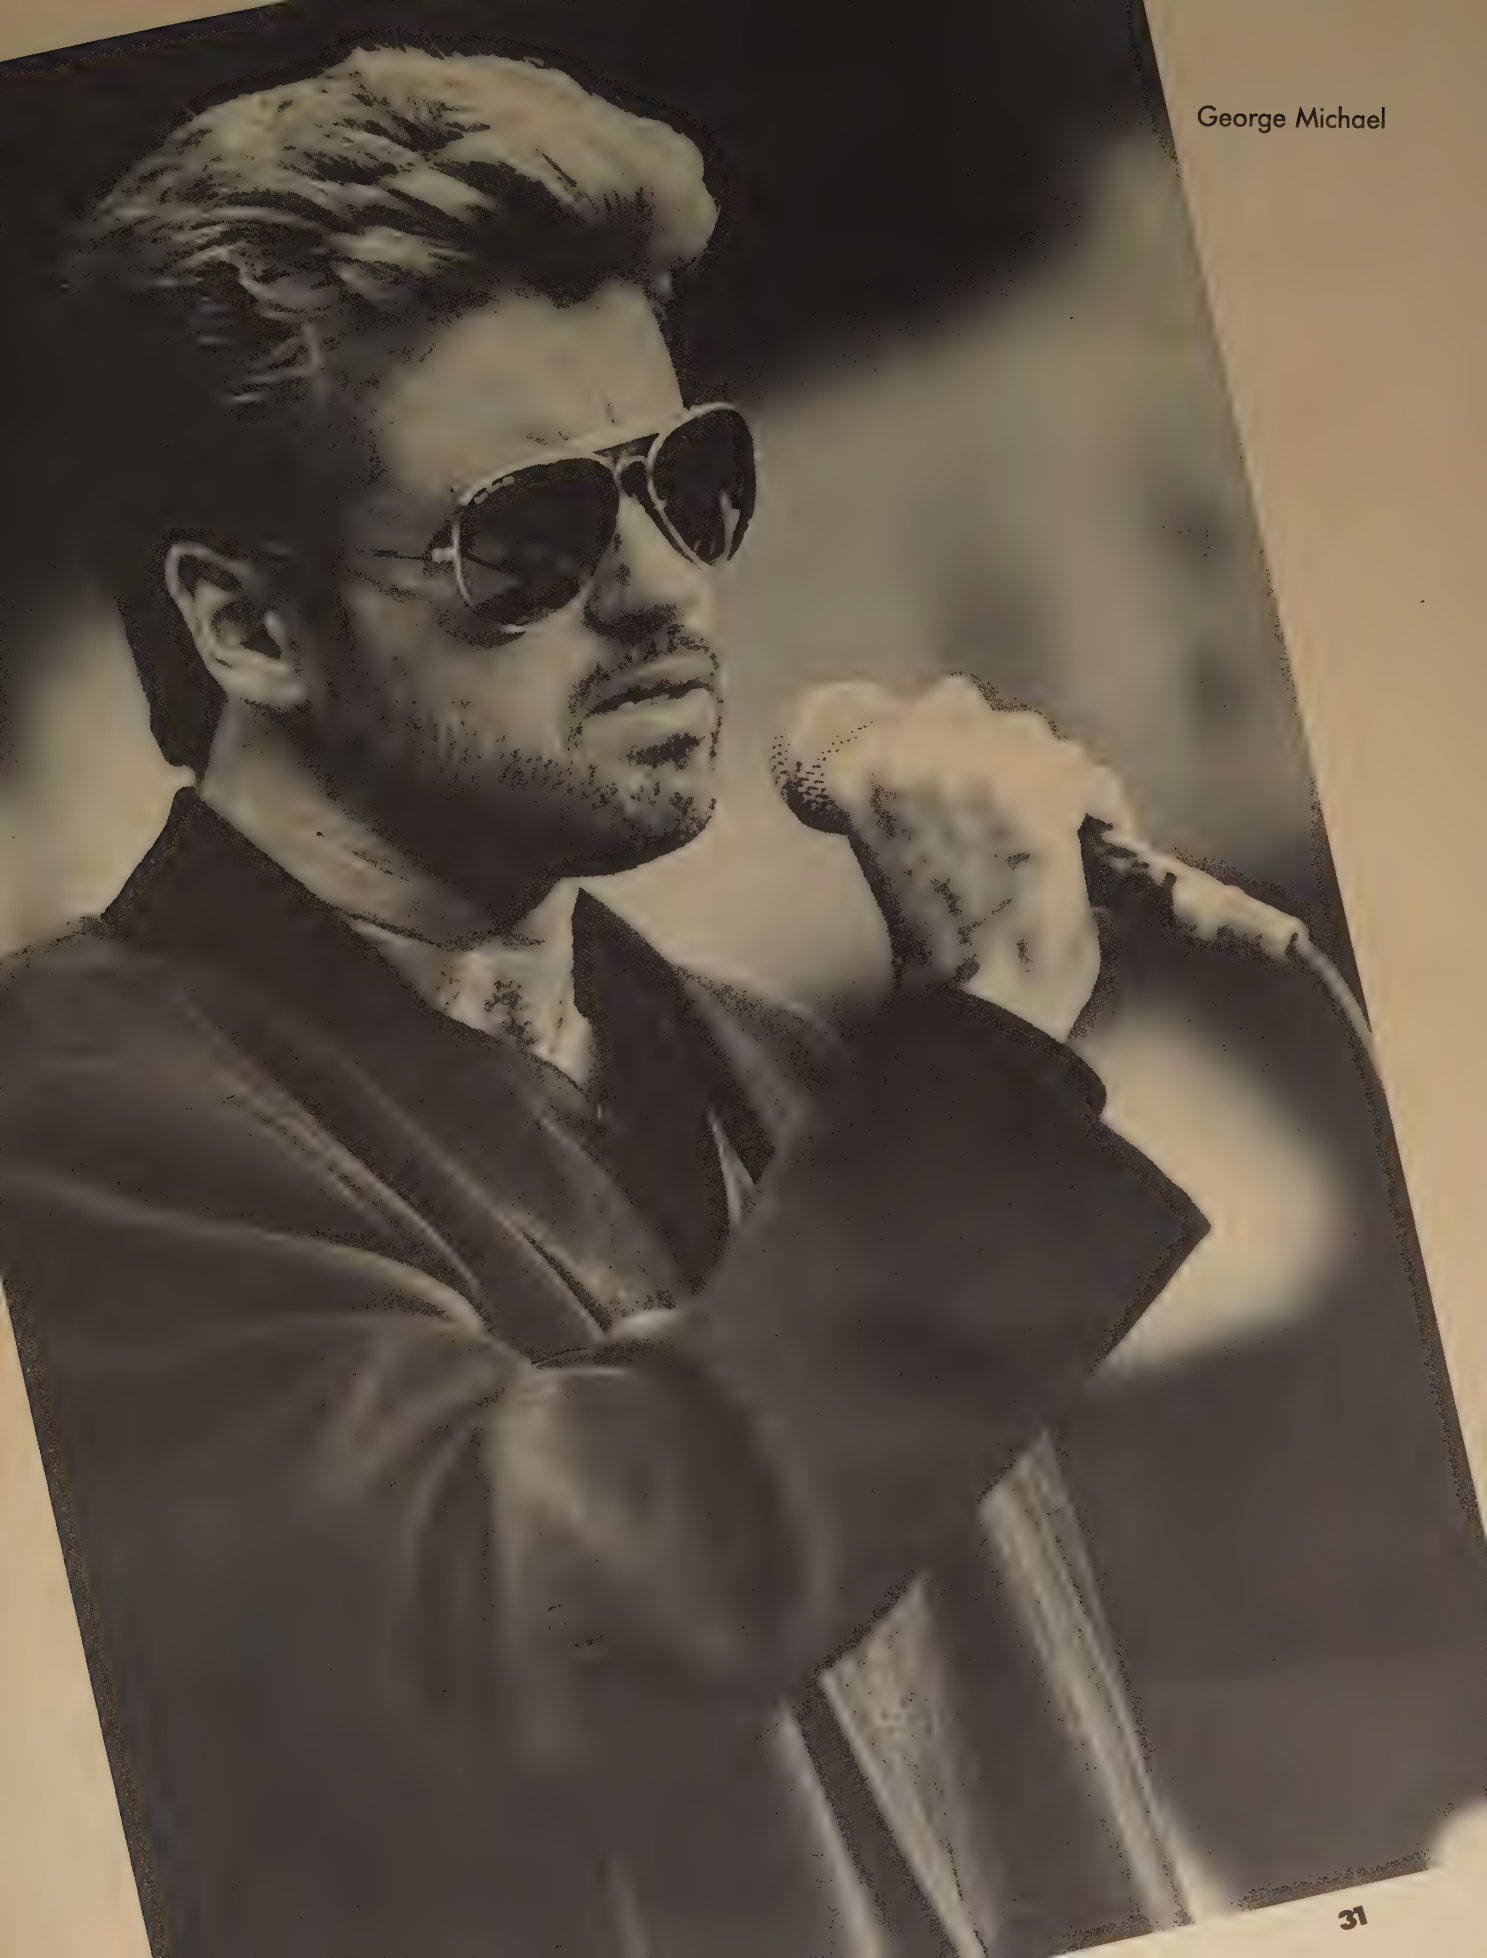

____ G. George Michael embarks on a world tour in support of his Faith LP. The tour takes him through Asia, Europe, and finally the United States. The tour is a sellout from start to finish.

____ H. Wham! releases its second LP, Make It Big and that's exactly what the group does when the song, "Wake Me Up Before You Go-Go" hits the number one spot.

____ I. Wham! breaks up and George Michael begins laying the groundwork for a solo career. Soon after he releases a single, "Careless Whisper," which goes to number one.

____ J. Wham! releases its first album, Fantastic, following the success of their first two singles, "Wham! Rap" and "Young Guns."

1. I grew up in Merrick, a Long Island suburb outside New York City. When I was four years old I began toying with the piano. A year later I began taking lessons. My first piano teacher happened to be the same one who gave Billy Joel lessons when he was a kid. When I was twelve, my parents got me a synthesizer and we turned our garage into a recording studio. I also sang in the Metropolitan Opera's Children's Chorus. I wrote some songs and performed and recorded them in our home studio. After hearing my tape, Atlantic Records offered me a contract and the chance to make my first LP. That LP, Out of the Blue, generated five top-five singles and sold more than 3 million copies.

2. As a boy I had a brief acting career, appearing in a stage version of Oliver. Later I took up drums. While in college several friends and I formed a group called Genesis. We became one of Britain's biggest bands, but in the 1970s our lead singer, Peter Gabriel, went solo and left us without a vocalist. I began singing lead, and much to everyone's surprise, the band achieved its greatest success ever. In the 1980s I began recording as a solo act, releasing LPs like Face Value and Hello, I Must Be Going. I won a Grammy award for a song I wrote for a movie called Against All Odds, and in 1988 I appeared in the lead role of a movie called Buster. A song I recorded for the soundtrack album "Two Hearts" went to number one.

3. I've enjoyed a string of hit records as a solo singer, including Pictures at Eleven and Now and Zen, and I've earned a reputation for being one of rock music's most powerful vocalists. However, it was my days as lead singer for Led Zeppelin and of songs like "Stairway to Heaven" that proved I was a rock singer second to none. These days I tour as a solo artist, fronting my own band, although I did join a Led Zeppelin reunion that took place in New York City in 1988 at a special concert marking the 40th Anniversary of Atlantic Records.

4. I first came to the attention of the music world in the 1960s when I was still a teenager. I was a member of a British Invasion band called the Spencer Davis group. Even back then, people thought I was headed for bigger things, and my smoky, soulful vocals were universally praised by fans and critics alike. Later I was part of two famous rock groups called Traffic and Blind Faith. In the mid-1970s I began a solo career, making records under my own name. My solo career took off a bit slowly, but in 1986 my hit LP, Arc of a Diver, and singles "While You See a Chance," "Talking Back to the Night," and "Valerie" brought me back to the top of the charts. In 1987 I released another solo LP, Back in the High Life, and it became a million seller. In 1988 I scored with several hits including "Don't You Know What the Night Can Do?" and "Roll With It."

5. I was born in a small town, Seymour, Indiana, and I've always called that state my home. I met up with David Bowie's manager in 1975 when I was still an up-and-coming singer. I got to cut my first LP, Chestnut Street Incident, soon after. As rock legend has it, I was shocked to learn that my soon-to-be-ex-manager had given me a new last name, Cougar. The name stuck. Eventually I began to use it as my middle name and added my real last name. I've been one of the 1980s most consistent hitmakers, scoring a number one single, "Jack and Diane," as well as other smashes like "Crumblin' Down," "Check It Out," and "Pink Houses." I've been involved in the Farm-Aid concerts and also recorded a song for the Woody Guthrie-Leadbelly tribute LP, A Vision Shared.

6. We still have the same three-man lineup as we did when we formed in Texas in 1970. In 1973 our career took off as the blues-and-boogie-based music on our third LP, Tres Hombres, rose up the charts. Our World Wide Texas Tour of 1976-77 was one of the most massive in rock history and it actually featured live cattle, snakes, and other Texas "critters" on stage. In the 1980s, we've had a string of hits, including "Legs," "Gimme All Your Lovin'," and "Sharp-Dressed Man," and million-selling albums like Afterburner and Eliminator. Lately we've spearheaded a fund drive to raise a million dollars for a blues museum in Clarksdale, Mississippi, the home of blues great Muddy Waters, who was one of our musical influences. Our guitarist, Billy Gibbons, known for his sharp guitars, is having an electric guitar made from a piece of wood from the cabin in which Muddy was raised.

7. I came to New York City in the 1970s with $35 in my pocket and a dream to be a successful singer-dancer. After many years of struggle and hard work, I finally got the chance to make records. My breakthrough hit was "Borderline" and it was soon followed by hits like "Material Girl." I recorded the theme song for a movie called VisionQuest. The song, "Crazy for You," did better than the movie and reached the number one spot on the charts. I also won critical acclaim for my acting in the movie Desperately Seeking Susan. In 1988 I released an album called You Can Dance. That same year I also appeared in a stage play in New York City called Speed the Plow, and my presence in the play drew packed houses every night. I recently released a new album, Like a Prayer.

8. I grew up in the Chicago area. I began singing professionally at age five and got my show business start performing jingles for products like peanut butter and candy bars. But I always wanted to be a rock guitarist and singer. In 1986 I won a record contract and released my first LP a year later. It sold well enough to earn a gold record. I've written and recorded several hit songs including "Don't Mean Nothing," "Should Have Known Better," and "Endless Summer Nights." When my first LP came out I usually was an opening act to better-known bands, but now I'm a top-billed headliner in my own right.

9. I was born into a musical family in New Jersey. My mother, Cissy, is a well-known singer and my cousin is Dionne Warwick. I began my singing career at age eleven in my church choir. Then, as a teenager, I began a modeling career. By the time I was eighteen, I had appeared on the covers of magazines such as Seventeen and Glamour. Eventually I returned to my musical roots and began singing backup vocals for singers including Lou Rawls, Chaka Khan, Jermaine Jackson, and Teddy Pendergrass. Those assignments led to my getting a record contract from Arista Records. My first album — whose title was just my name — yielded several number one songs and became the best-selling debut album by a solo singer ever. My second album did even better. Released in 1987, it entered the charts at number one! That marked the first time a female singer had ever done that. Only albums by Elton John, Bruce Springsteen, and Stevie Wonder had done it before.
